RAINS-AND BAD ROADS END FIGHTING FOR TIME BEING

Military Operations in Manchuria Made Impossible by Heavy Rains - New Developments Looked for Soon.

There has been an end for the time being of fighting on a large scale, which began when, on Oct. 9, Kuropatkin announced to his army that the time had arrived for advance against the Japanese. Heavy rains and consequent bad roads have made military operations on either side extremely difficult, if not impossible. The interruption, according to advice received at St. Petersburg, is being utilized by both the Russian and Japanese commanders in making their dispositions of forces, and new objectives are likely to develop when active operations are resumed. A Tokyo dispatch states that the Japanese government will seek to make a representation to St. Petersburg through the American embassy against alleged use of Chinese uniforms by Russian troops in violation of usages of war. Russia is hastening organization of a second Manchurian army.

HEARS FROM KUROPATKIN.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19.—The emperor received the following from Kuropatkin under yesterday's date:

"During the night the Japanese attacked our advanced positions at Tzong Tze hill, but were repulsed. No report has been received of any other engagements. Everything was quiet at all our positions up to ten this morning. Rain fell all night and the roads are greatly damaged."

A QUIET DAY.

Mukden, Oct. 19.—Yesterday passed off quietly. No firing was heard last night. Japanese appear to be slowly falling back. A glare seen above the encampments may indicate they are burning their stores prior to withdrawal. This morning broke chilly but clear. As soon as the roads dry resumption of the battle is probable, as Russians everywhere are in close touch with Japanese.

JAPANESE CONCENTRATING.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19.—Sakharoff telegraphs at noon to-day the Japanese are concentrating at Linshihui, west of the railroad. A detachment of Russian cavalry reconnoitered last night in the vicinity of Shakhie captured two Japanese guns with no losses to themselves.

PLANS OF RUSSIANS.

With Oku's Left Army at the front, Oct. 17, via Fusan, Oct. 19.—Maps captured by the Japanese show the Russians had arranged for a series of retreats, and these maps indicated where stands were to be made. This accounts for the slowness of the advance of the Japanese and their failure to cut off the Russian retreat. Russian and gullies met with great skill. Russian and gullies met with great skill. Russian and gullies met with great skill.

NO FIGHTING

Heavy Rains Compels Suspension of Hostilities in Manchuria.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—For the moment heavy rains and impassable roads have compelled suspension of operations in Manchuria. There was practically no fighting yesterday and none whatever last night. There is evidence of a new disposition of forces on both sides. Kuropatkin is extending his right, whether with a view to turning movement for the safety of Long Tze hill, or whether to meet and thwart the Japanese turning movement from the west, has not developed. The Japanese also appear to be waiting for the westward.

Yelled hints continue to arrive that the Russians have recovered from the blow inflicted last week by Oyama and that Kuropatkin is preparing to renew the struggle as soon as the roads dry.

Two Associated Press dispatches from Mukden at night mention reports that the Japanese had been preparing to retreat and that the Russian army was moving forward. The Japanese had been preparing to retreat and that the Russian army was moving forward.

The reappearance of Alexieff at Mukden to-day for conference is not particularly reassuring, as such conferences in the past have not been fruitful of success.

Movement of troops on the Russian western frontier and preparations to further reduce garrisons in this region revive talk of complete understanding with Germany, under which the frontier will be protected so as to permit of dispatch to Manchuria of troops stationed in Poland. There are about 300,000 soldiers in Poland, comprising some of the best troops in the empire. It is already known that practically all of three corps in the Vilna government will be included in General Gripenberg's army, but as these troops are included in what is known as Russia's first line of defense, the fact has not attracted much attention. It now develops the rifle brigade at Plotzk, in the government of Tschernobova, directly on the frontier, is mobilizing.

In the unformed diplomatic circles it is believed nothing in the shape of a treaty between Russia and Germany has been committed to writing, but that there is simply a mutual personal understanding between the two sovereigns covering this point, and, some believe, going much farther. So far as the present war is concerned, there is no evidence that the supposed agreement covers active aid, as such agreement would render operative the Anglo-Japanese alliance. It is thought, however, in diplomatic quarters that there is something in the nature of a pledge on the part of the emperor of Germany to protect Russia's western frontier. It is now recalled as significant of the deep personal friendship of the two emperors that when Emperor William was about to undergo an operation last year he commended his oldest son to the hands of Emperor Nicholas. This fact was mentioned at the time in the Official Messenger, but did not attract as much attention as it is now receiving.

THE BALTIC FLEET.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—Confirmation of the St. Petersburg statement that part of the Russian Baltic fleet will follow the Cape of Good Hope route is contained in a dispatch from Kiel, which says the Hamburg-American line has contracted to carry the battleship squadron, which, it is added, will follow the Cape of Good Hope route. Business men of Kiel complain at the outcry regarding Germany's alleged breach of neutrality, which they say prevented the fleet from visiting Kiel as intended, and this deprived merchants of that port of the opportunity to supply the Russian warships with coal and provisions, which now falls into French hands. French firms have been entrusted with conveying the Russian cruisers and torpedo boats which will traverse the Mediterranean.

CHINESE COSTUMES

Are Used by Russian Troops—So Stated by Japanese Government.

Tokio, Oct. 19.—The Japanese government to-day decided to draw attention of Russia to unlawful action of Russian troops in using Chinese costumes. The notice will be served through the state department, which will transmit it through the American embassy at St. Petersburg.

A memorandum issued by the foreign office says that on Oct. 4 a body of infantry belonging to the Russian Third regiment of sharpshooters, wearing Chinese costumes, attacked a Japanese force on the Mukden road, and that Russians similarly clad approached the Japanese lines and attempted surprise. Different reports received, it is charged, indicate Russians are purchasing enormous quantities of Chinese costumes.

The memorandum points out combatants not properly uniformed are liable to punishment as offenders against laws of war, and that participation in fighting without uniforms is a violation of international usage and contrary to meaning of article 23 of the supplementary rules of the convention governing the laws and customs of war on land.

It is pointed out further that this action of the Russians will prove a source of great calamity to innocent Chinese, who will thereby be exposed to danger owing to their inability from distances to distinguish Russian soldiers from real Chinese.

WAR REPORTS

Falkenberg, Denmark, Oct. 19.—The remainder of the Baltic Russian fleet sailed this morning for the north.

London, Oct. 19.—Special dispatches from St. Petersburg make mention of a crushing defeat of two Japanese divisions. There is no confirmation, however, in any reliable quarter of such report.

According to the Standard correspondent with Kuropatkin, under date of Oct. 18, a Russian battalion which crossed the Taitse river, has been almost annihilated. While retreating over a pontoon bridge, the correspondent says the battalion was overtaken by a regiment of Japanese aviators which got its machine guns into action and swept the bridge from end to end.

ILLINOIS BANKERS

St. Louis, Oct. 19.—More than five hundred members and guests attended the second day's session of the Illinois Bankers' association held to-day. Haxman Baker, of Philadelphia, discussed the question of an exhibition at the world's fair would banking in the United States deserve honorable mention. The leading address of the day was made by Hon. William B. Ridgely, comptroller of currency.

Resolutions were adopted urging enactment of a uniform negotiable instrument account and pledging support of the association to the "clean money movement" inaugurated by the American Bankers' association. Officers were elected as follows: President, E. D. Durham, Orange; chairman of executive committee, Nelson P. Green, Toledo; secretary, F. P. Johnson, Chicago; treasurer, John S. Little, Rushville.

GIVE MORE ASSISTANCE German Red Cross Society Declines on More Work in the Far East.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—As a result of the visit here of a delegate of the Russian Red Cross central committee the German Red Cross society has declined to send further assistance to the seat of war and will erect a German hospital at Iktinsk, Siberia, and provide it with an auxiliary ambulance train. Negotiations are in progress regarding a similar offer to Japan. The German central committee in a circular on the subject expresses the opinion that in view of the sanguinary character of the war being waged and the fearful obstinacy displayed, action on a large scale by neutral Red Cross societies, with the object of relieving the greatly overtaxed ambulance services of the belligerents, will appeal to the world-wide feelings of humanity.

DESERT WOUNDED BOY

Michigan Youth Accidentally Shot by Comrade and Left to Die in Woods.

Loomis, Mich., Oct. 19.—A 16-year-old boy has been arrested in connection with the death of Arthur Burwash, aged 18. The dead boy lay in the woods ten hours with his leg almost entirely shot off below the hip. One of his companions had shot him accidentally. It is alleged, and then becoming terrified had carried the wounded boy to a swamp and covering him up with leaves abandoned him to his fate. Clyde Harvey, aged 12, alleged he was threatened with death if he reported the accident. The boy who is alleged to have done the shooting went about his customary duties until compelled to accompany a searching party into the woods. He denied all knowledge of the missing boy's whereabouts until the party reached a spot where the groans of the dying lad could be heard.

CONFESSION TO MURDER.

Payette, Mo., Oct. 19.—Edward McKenzie confessed to-day that he shot John Smithers, a farmer on the latter's place near here and declared he had been influenced by Smithers' wife to commit the deed. There were thirty-one children sleeping in the upper rooms of the home, which was a three-story building. It is believed the two children burned were overcome by smoke in their beds, as they had evidently made no effort to escape.

FAIRBANKS AND SHAW TALK TO REPUBLICANS OF BROOKLYN

Mass Meeting Held in That City Last Night—Bryan Still in Indiana—Davis' Campaign— Other News.

New York, Oct. 19.—A Republican mass meeting held in Brooklyn to-night at Clearmont rink was addressed by Senator Fairbanks, Secretary Shaw and Congressman Griffith of Indianapolis. George H. Roberts presided and introduced Senator Fairbanks as the first speaker.

During his speech Fairbanks said: "We have never had a Democratic administration under which the people have prospered so far as a degree as under the administration of President Roosevelt"; and asked: "Is it the part of national wisdom to overthrow a successful administration and invite civil war power as pledged to carry out unwise opposing policies?" adding: "To do so is to invite disaster. It is to make a plaything of the ballot."

He then discussed the Panama canal question, declaring: "The canal will stand as a tribute to the genius and statesmanship of the Republican party. To no one will so much credit be due as to President Roosevelt, who in a critical hour foresaw the nation's duty and opportunity."

Secretary Shaw spoke on the tariff, defending the Republican protective policy, a continuance of which he considered the best for the country's prosperity.

NEW YORK MEETING.

New York, Oct. 19.—Senator Fairbanks and Lieut. Gov. Frank W. Higgins, candidate for governor, addressed a Republican mass meeting in Madison Square garden to-night. Former Secretary of War Root presided. Large delegations of undergraduates of Yale and Princeton, were present and took part in the parade which preceded the meeting. Several delegations from other cities, including the Pittsburgh Athletic club of Pittsburgh, attended.

Root in opening the meeting spoke of the national issues. He criticized the Philippines. He expressed the opinion that the Philippines had been acquired by some sort of imperialism which led him to overstate the cost of American occupation in the Philippines by some four hundred and fifty million dollars. He suggested that Parker read the statutes enacted for the Philippines and said that if he did so he'd "find a body of, which, for wisdom, for duty regard to the interests of any people for whom they are enacted and for constructive ability, challenge comparison with the statutes of any state of the American union."

Root continued discussion of this topic at some length, combating various statements made by Parker. Senator Fairbanks said in part:

"Commercial growth is not the mere result of chance. Industrial development is not the fruit of accident. Our progress is due alone to an adherence to national policies which do not change with changing seasons."

"There is no political party success so important as a triumph of sound national policies. Capital must be assured that it may safely plan for the future. It must feel justified on the basis upon which it calculates will not be undermined or disturbed by irrational or temporary policies. The Republican party has, during its entire career, stood for those policies which have been enduring. It has stood for the best thought with respect to economic and financial policies, knowing full well that the highest and best interests of labor and capital are to be promoted by rigid adherence to the soundest policies."

He said policies for which the Republican party stands have been tried for years and vindicated by experience. In his discussion of the tariff Fairbanks said:

"The Republican party has always been ready to revise the tariff whenever revision has been essential in public interest. It is not in favor of revision along free trade lines. Whenever it becomes evident that revision is needed in public interest the Republican party is willing and able to make it. It will make it consistently with the protective policy. It will make it so as to preserve protective principles and promote our industrial development—not to check or overthrow it."

In the house of bishops the standing committee on relations of capital and labor, of which Bishop Potter of New York is chairman, presented a report. The committee was appointed by the last general convention to study the purposes of labor organizations, investigate the causes and hold themselves in readiness to act as arbitrators should their services be desired. The report says no request for action as arbitrators had been received and the committee had not as yet succeeded in studying in common the cause of current disturbances. The report discusses causes for industrial warfare in general terms and makes a strong appeal for general legislation making child labor impossible in this country. The report was adopted and the commission continued.

BURIAL OF KING GEORGE

HIS REMAINS LOWERED INTO A VAULT

Dresden, Oct. 19.—With cannon booming and with volleys of musketry outside, and with Emperor William, King Frederick Augustus, Archduke Franz Ferdinand and other royal personages, courtiers and dignitaries standing about, the catafalque bearing the remains of the late King George of Saxony was to-night lowered into the vault of the Catholic court church. When the red velvet-covered casket beneath the black baldachin was no longer visible a mighty choir composed of church and opera singers burst forth with the "Salve Regina."

At 8 o'clock this evening the royal party entered the church, the new king walking between Emperor William and Archduke Franz Ferdinand, behind whom came the grand dukes of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Mecklenburg-Strelitz and Saxe-Weimar, Princes Albrecht of Prussia and Ludwig of Bavaria, the hereditary grand duke of Baden and many others.

After singing of the "Miserere" Bishop Wichanowsky consecrated the remains according to the ritual of the Roman Catholic church, after which "Pater noster" was sung. The court preacher, Dr. Kuimberg, spoke feelingly of the late King George's heroism in suffering, which, he said, more than doubled the laurels won in war by this soldier-king.

PLEASANT EVENING.

Misses Eva Vasconcellos, Lula Munis and Refina DelRatas very pleasantly entertained a limited number of their girl friends Tuesday evening at the home of the latter on Voorhees street, in honor of Miss Mamie Nunes.

The hours were spent in music and various games, and dainty refreshments were served.

Each guest was presented with a souvenir in the form of a crown trimmed in gilt and tied with the colors of the carnival.

WHITEHALL ELECTRIC LINE.

The officials of the Whitehall sewer pipe company met Tuesday to choose directors for the electric line they are constructing from the works to the clay bank. The same persons are managing the works were chosen to take charge of the line. There was a good representation at the meeting and the affairs of the company showed up in prosperous condition. The road is begun and they expect to have it in operation in a few weeks.

THE JERRY COLLINS SALE.

The sale of the late Jerry Collins property will take place to day, Thursday, at ten a. m. The adv. given the Journal was erroneous, in that it stated the sale would be Wednesday, Oct. 20, when they should have said Thursday.

OPERA HOUSE FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The audiences who listen to the interpretations of grand operas offered by the Elly band, open their eyes in wonder at the marvelous effects produced by the players which are quite equal to those produced by the greatest singers in the same operas.

The explanation of this is that the opera pieces are all played in the same key in which they were originally written for singers, and the vocal parts, instead of being divided up among reed and brass instruments, are given invariably to the brasses as being nearer the human voice in their effects.

For these grand opera selections, the trumpets play the soprano parts, the bugles play the alto parts, the trombones the tenor and the euphoniums the baritone and bass parts. Seats now on sale.

SUWANEE RIVER.

"On the Suwanee River," which comes to the Grand Friday night, tells the story of intrigue and hardship in the sunny south in a quaint way. It promises to be as long lived as the old familiar song from which the title is derived. The management have given the play a fitting frame of scenic environment admirably painted from drawings made of the most picturesque spots along the famous stream.

The section is laid near the small village of Suwanee, and shows us the old southern Clayton family mansion, one of the first settlers in Florida.

Jacksonville has always had the reputation of being a musical city. Friday afternoon the public will have a chance to hear "Elly's" Band at the Grand, undoubtedly the finest band in the United States.

A SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

The Republican meeting at Muddy Prairie Tuesday night was a fine success in the way of attendance, enthusiasm and speeches. Judge M. T. Layman and H. M. Ticknor were the speakers and for a considerable length of time held the close attention of the audience as they discussed the issues of the day. The candidates were also on hand and all made an excellent impression on the voters.

OUR STATE TICKET.

The action of the county judges at Springfield regarding the contest over the nominations of the Republican party for members of the lower house of the state legislature in the forty-fifth district, settles the question and now that it is done all loyal Republicans will accept the situation. Our candidates for the legislature are Frank J. Heinl, of Morgan county, and Charles Feitel, of Sangamon county. Both are first class men and should be elected, for they will serve the people all right with integrity and fine ability. The character of each is a guarantee that his duties will be performed all right and that the state will be benefited by the services of such men, and it is to be hoped they will both get the necessary majority of the votes of the district to entitle them to a seat in the law-making body of the state.
The many course of Mr. Deneben compares most favorably to himself with that of his opponent. Mr. Deneben has principles to enunciate and he gives them to his audiences in no uncertain sound. He goes ahead in a straightforward manner calculated to win the confidence of his hearers and despite all the boasts made by the opposition he will have an immense majority. The text of the opposition is abuses in the management of the state institutions. The Republican party will meet them on that ground. All that can be done logically is to compare the conduct of the respective parties when in power. Of course, the Democratic governor is no more, and his record will be touched lightly. All citizens know it and hang their heads for very shame when contemplating it. As, for instance, the honorable chairman of the Democratic gathering Tuesday night said some one was needed to take charge of the state's affairs. When that very gentleman was a trustee of the Insane hospital patients were charged twelve dollars a year for incidental expenses, making an immense sum throughout the state, but when the Republican party came into power there was wonderfully little to show for any such gathering of the funds. It is amusing to hear a Democratic politician talk of civil service in anything. Who inaugurated to the contrary in our state institutions? No; the only wise course to pursue is to vote the whole Republican state ticket, together with the national and county.

HE MET THE AUTHOR.

An amusing incident occurred on the train which bore Professor Johnston to this city not long since. As the cars were pulling out of Decatur the professor took a seat beside a young man who proved to be a student at the university in Decatur, and who lived near enough to the city to enable him to board at home, going back and forth on the train. Being of an industrious turn of mind, the young man began putting in his time studying his Latin lesson for the next day, and glancing at the book the professor saw that it was one of his own textbooks, so addressing himself to the young man and assuming an air of ignorance, he said:

"What is that book?"
"Oh, that's a Latin book," was the reply.
"What do you do with that sort of a thing?"
"We study it at college."
"What is Latin, anyhow?"
"Why, it's a language they used to speak in Rome long ago and from it comes a good part of our own."
"Think its much use?"
"Certainly, it's a great benefit."
"Might read a little for me if you don't care."
"I am very glad to accommodate you," replied the young man, and in the halting manner of a beginner he did the best he could.
The two fell into a pleasant conversation and the professor asked the young man his name, which was given, and the professor was asked in return. The latter wrote it down on a piece of paper and the student did not read it readily.
"If you can't read that, here it is again," said the professor, as he took the Latin book and turned to the title page which contained his name as author. The young fellow almost fainted at the idea of riding in company with so much greatness and erudition, but he finally recovered and then the professor took the book and gave his companion a lesson in Latin worth several times as much as he had ever received before. They parted with mutual regret and the young man will not soon forget the kindly treatment he received at the hands of an eminent man.

A JUST RECOGNITION.
Jacksonville has a number of public spirited citizens who have done much toward the welfare of the place and it is not always that they are duly remembered, or that their deeds are properly mentioned. The public library of this city is an enterprise which is of incalculable benefit and its good work is enjoyed by many who would not otherwise have such advantages. The writer well remembers when there was no such thing in Jacksonville and people were obliged to buy, borrow or go without books. At one time a valuable addition was made to the library of the college and good President Sturtevant was delighted and invited the citizens of the city to come to the hall and enjoy the contents of the book shelves there as under the circumstances it was not practicable to permit the books to circulate. Among those present at the time the library was formally opened to the public was the late Dr. P. G. Gillert and he remarked that he had need of a number of expensive books, which he was about to order, but to his surprise and satisfaction he found them in the college library, and then there handed Dr. Sturtevant a fifty dollar bill with which to buy more volumes. The college collection served its purpose well, but in the nature of things could not be of such general use as would be desired of a general library, and public spirited citizens began to cast about to see what could be done. Probably one of the first was Henry H. Hall, residing on West College avenue, and the labor he bestowed on the enterprise was great. He worked without recompense and gave much money and valuable time in promoting the reading room, which in time became quite popular. The Old Fellows had a valuable collection of books and they were induced to place them on the shelves of the room, which added largely to its treasures. Mr. Hall was unceasing in his efforts and the good he accomplished is hard to estimate. Along with him was Dr. Milligan, of revered memory; John H. Woods, who labored untiringly, while others added their services. Several entertainments were gotten up for the reading room, which was aided by them. One was the Pickwick trial in which many prominent citizens took part. In the east were P. H. Stebbins, Joseph O. King, Major Callon, James M. Epler, Misses Hattie and Ellen Hammond and others equally prominent. The net proceeds of this amounted to $296.10. Then "Money" was put on and "Nicholas Nickleby," each netting a good sum for the reading room, and each ardently fostered and aided by Mr. Hall, and now that the library has grown to such proportions it is but right to remember a man who did so much for it in its infancy.

CHOKING CATARRH CURED.
Mr. Caswell Says, "Hyomei Cured Me"—Your Money Back If It Does Not Cure You.
"Use Hyomei and be cured of catarrh," is what all who have tried it for that disease say to their friends. O. S. Caswell, of North Middleboro, Mass., writes: "Hyomei has relieved me from a choking catarrhal trouble and cleared my head. I am glad to recommend it to my friends." It is the easiest thing in the world to stop catarrh or catarrhal cold at its beginning if you use Hyomei. Just breathe the health-giving balsamic air for a few minutes and your catarrh will be cured. In the worst cases of this disease, chronic or acute, Hyomei used four or five times a day is all that is needed to soon effect a cure. In this and neighboring towns, there are hundreds that can testify to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh. Many of the staunchest friends of this remedy began its use with little hope that they would be cured, but as Hatch offered to refund the money if it did not benefit, they decided to try it on that plan, and were soon restored to health.
The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest-pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents.

Big Republican All Day Meeting.

On Saturday, Oct. 22, there will be a Republican rally in this city, which will be one of the largest to be held this campaign. It will be an all day and night meeting, with speaking in Central park at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m., and there will be prominent speakers here to address the meeting. Those who will speak here are: Ex-Senator William E. Mason, Col. Frank O. Lowden, Assistant Attorney General of the United States Judge J. G. Thompson, Congressman Charles H. Fuller, of the Twelfth district, and Congressman Joseph V. Graft, of the Fourteenth district. All are able speakers and have for many years been prominent in the Republican ranks. At 7:30 will occur a monster parade and delegations from over the county will participate. A brilliant display of fireworks will be a feature of the parade. Reduced rates will be made on all railroads.

All the members succeeded in eluding the seniors, who were out after them, and all were present at the feast except Clegg, who was almost surrounded, but scented danger and escaped safely to his room.

The banqueters assembled at the inn at 7:30 and enjoyed an elaborate spread after which a program of toasts was given. Prof. and Mrs. R. O. Stoops were present as guests of the class.

FROGS STALL A TRAIN

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 19.—According to veracious officials of the Onaha, it required 287 pounds of sand on the tracks to run a heavy freight into Lake Crystal, on account of the slippery life blood of myriads of frogs, which were crushed under the drivers of two locomotives attached to the train.

Where the frogs came from is a mystery, but the officials say that the first effort to get a train through Saturday night was a failure, because the rails were so slippery the big drivers would simply whirl around, while the engine coughed and spluttered.

Finally the train was backed out and another engine added to the equipment, while a brakeman was dispatched to get another hundred pounds of sand. Before the train was able to enter the yards all the sand had been used up.

PALACE OF PLEASURE.

New Jersey Church's Institution to Fight the Devil.

BOTH SEXES IN ITS MEMBERSHIP.

Building in Jersey City Where Dancing, Card Playing, Billiards, Gymnastics, Exercises and Theatrical Performances Are Provided For. Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder and Joseph Milbank Creators of the Plan.

One of New Jersey's churches has undertaken to fight the devil with some of his own weapons, says the New York Tribune. A few days ago a church in Jersey City opened a "palace of pleasure," so the public might obtain recreation there instead of at saloons and dance halls. There people may dance, play cards, billiards and pool and take part in as well as witness theatrical performances. There the boys may box and wrestle and the men may smoke.

The People's palace, as it is known from the inscription over its entrance, was created by the Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, pastor of the First Congregational church of Jersey City, and Joseph Milbank, a citizen of New York. Mr. Scudder arrested the ideas. Mr. Milbank the money. As Mr. Scudder said at the time the cornerstone of the building was laid: "The People's palace will sanctify all legitimate amusements and will not let the devil have a monopoly of them. It will keep boys off the streets, young men out of saloons and young women out of dance halls."

Both Mr. Scudder and Mr. Milbank believe in "practical Christianity" and the way they were brought together illustrates that "practical Christianity" is about ten years ago the pastor of the First Congregational church of Jersey City induced its members to build temples in its midst, so that the boys of the neighborhood might "have their fun" there instead of at beer halls. The temple made a great success among some other clergy men, and they also attracted the attention of Mr. Milbank. The clergyman openly criticized such an amusement in a church and said it would send more boys to the beer halls. Mr. Milbank watched and waited. He said nothing. The temple stayed, and the congregation, and especially the Sunday school, increased until the First Congregational became the largest church of that denomination in Jersey City. Furthermore, one "innovation" led to another. One day Mr. Scudder discovered that some of the boys in their desire to learn to swim were coming to the water front, where they were completely out of their depth. He immediately decided that the church should have a swimming pool of its own and succeeded in having one built. Mr. Milbank heartily approved and on meeting the pastor, he said:

"Well, I understand that you have added a swimming pool to your church."

"Exactly. Cleanliness is next to godliness," the clergyman replied.

"Well, well, and what will you do next?"

"We would build a pleasure palace for our people if we could. We would build tomorrow if we had the money. At any rate, you ought to believe in a church swimming pool."

"How's that?" asked Mr. Milbank.

"Because you are a Baptist," said Dr. Scudder.

The two men have been close friends ever since, and they have worked together in planning and building a house of amusement as it were of one and the same creed. It is for this reason perhaps that the People's palace is wholly undenominational.

Before the People's palace was opened 400 men, women and children applied for membership. More young women wanted to join the dancing classes than there was room for.

Many of those who are now to be found nightly at the People's palace are young men who used to hang about the poolrooms of the water front. They may be seen playing at the pool and billiard tables or engaged in games of pinocle or cribbage. Others are up on the top floor, which is equipped as a gymnasium and armory, engaged in boxing and wrestling bouts.

Dr. Scudder is particularly anxious that all his boys should know how to defend themselves with their fists, and in his spare moments he instructs them in pugilism. Only the other night he found two boys wrestling over a game of checkers and just caught a big boy about to strike a smaller lad. Putting his hand on the shoulder of the latter, he said:

"This is as much your fault as the other fellow's. If you had developed your muscles he would have been afraid to touch you."

The People's palace stands at Bergen avenue and Forest street on a plot 117 by 135 feet. It is four stories high and cost $100,000. Its auditorium on the third floor is the largest in Jersey City, heights and will hold 1,300 persons. Its stage is equipped with all the accessories of a modern theater. It will be used at different times as a theater, ballroom and Sunday school room. The basement will contain bowling alleys, shuffleboards, pool and billiard tables, a rifle range and a smoking room for men. On the other floors are rooms for dining, reading, card playing and for sewing and cooking classes. There are also private apartments where men and women may arrange their dress for a ball. In pleasant weather the roof may be used as a garden or a grilling place for the Roosevelt troopers, as Dr. Scudder calls a regiment of boys to whom he has given military training.

VERY CURIOUS RING.

A Quaker City society maiden is very proud of a ring the like of which is probably not to be found in this country. It descended to her from her grandmother and was the workmanship of a famous Parisian jeweler.

As worn it forms a fourfold coil around the finger of its fair owner, terminating in the usual serpent head, set with a wicked looking emerald. It is, however, provided with an infinitesimal number of tiny joints, invisible except upon the very closest examination, but permitting the snake to be drawn out in a spiral several inches long. Although it has been in the family over fifty years, these delicate springs have not once been out of order, luckily, since it would require extraordinary skill to repair and make them as good as when fresh from the hands of the clever French art jeweler. Both for its value and as a curiosity the ring has been very carefully handled and treasured.

London Neglects Shakespeare.

London has never had a memorial to Shakespeare. Recently a resident of that city offered to donate $12,500 toward the purpose if the county council would accept a financial responsibility in the undertaking and secure other contributions. This the council declines to do, and, as much as it appreciates the fitness of this honoring the greatest of English poets, some one else must guarantee the full funds before it will entertain the provision of a site. Meantime the city which Shakespeare so highly honored will ignore the wishes and generosity of those who would respect his memory and confine its one public testimonial to the poet to the little bust in Westminster abbey.

A New Welding Process.

An invention has recently been shown in Birmingham, England, for the seamless welding of iron, steel and other metals by a new process. A flame is formed by burning acetylene with oxygen, and it is directed in the usual way by means of a blow-pipe. It is said that the hardest metals may be welded in this way as readily as lead. Notwithstanding the immense heat of the flame, the process does not make necessary the protection of the eyes by dark glasses, for the mixture of oxygen with the acetylene removes the glare and leaves a small flame of a greenish blue color.—New York Times.

A Courageous Boy.

A small boy living at Agniston, Ala., proved himself to have a good deal of courage as well as a level head. He had gone to bed when something stung him on one of his fingers. He got up quickly and saw a big rattlesnake near his bed, which had crawled into his room in some unknown way. The boy realized that he was close to death and ran and got an ax, with which he cut off his finger just below the spot where the snake had struck. His quick action saved his life, but it must have taken a lot of pluck.

The Crazy World.

"At the present rate of the development of insanity, according to the world's statistics," says Dr. James P. Lynch of Chicago, "and with present conditions of work and living unaltered half of the civilized world will be more or less insane 500 years from now, and in another 200 years from that time, under the same conditions, most of the Caucasian race will be mentally deranged and civilization wiped off the face of the earth, by the multitudes of Goths and vandals of Asia."

The Great Mississippi Valley.

It has required but two decades to shift the center of population from Ohio to Indiana, the center of farm values from eastern Indiana to western Illinois, the center of the farm income to the western banks of the Mississippi and the center of farming area from eastern Illinois to central Missouri. Two centuries have already crossed the Mississippi, and two more decades will be sufficient to advance another across the Father of Waters.—Des Moines Register-Leader.

A Small Legacy.

Next to the proverbial shilling, perhaps the smallest legacy has been inherited by a native of New Zealand. He had a son who died in the Dutch Indies and left him his effects, amounting to thirteen pence halfpenny. The money was payable at Middleburg, and the man had to walk ten Dutch leagues for it, losing a day's work.—London Answers.

Legend on a Man's Arm.

"Falsehood, thy name is woman," is tattooed on the arm of a convict who has just escaped from prison in Gratz. The police have advertised a description of him, of which the above tattoo mark is the most salient feature.—London Express.

ONE OF PAYNE'S HABITS.

Late Postmaster General's Habit to Stand on Newsboys.

The late Henry C. Payne, postmaster general of the United States, had a habit of carrying a folded newspaper in his hand when walking the streets of Washington, says the New York Press. Entering the capitol one day, Senator Spooner asked Mr. Payne for a look at his paper, saying he was interested in a bit of current news.

"Why, this is a couple of weeks old," said Senator Spooner, returning the paper in disgust.

"I didn't carry the paper to read," explained the postmaster general. "It's just a bluff. When I carry a newspaper the newsboys don't bother me."

Postmaster General Payne was a master of the epigram. He demonstrated that fact when he was questioned about some charges that had been brought against one of the officials of his department, says Collier's Weekly. Shrewd political organizer and manager, for many years one of the confidential advisers of several administrations, systematic, quick and unhesitating in his own private business policies, his command of incisive speech on occasions and aptitude at epigrammatic replies are not to be wondered at.

"It is not clear who brought these charges," said Mr. Payne. "They were worked up by Charlotte Smith," suggested his interviewer. "She is a reformer who is a familiar figure at the capitol."

"Charlotte Smith?" repeated the postmaster general. "Yes, I know her. Fathers everything, mothers nothing."

Old residents of Shelburne Falls still remember Mr. Payne when he was a boy as an unusually bright chap, rather undersized, with bushy hair and a quick, alert manner, says the Philadelphia Press. He was studious and a hard worker, and at the age of fifteen began to look about for a position to help pay for his livelihood.

It was then that he entered Uncle Sam's postal service. He told the postmaster of the village that for a dollar a week he would be at the postoffice early every morning, would sweep and dust the place and do such errands as were to be done before the hour for going to school.

BIG NUGGET FROM KLONDIKE

Proposal to Make It Feature of New Crown for King Edward.

Klonlike has a project for a special crown for King Edward, according to a Seattle (Wash.) dispatch to the New York Tribune. The largest nugget ever found in the Canadian El Dorado has been brought to Dawson and is on exhibition at Seattle. The proposal is made to buy it by popular subscription from the owners and forward it to King Edward, with the request that it be used as the principal piece in a crown to contain gems and precious metals from all parts of Britain's empire.

The nugget weighs 85.43 ounces, and there is not a particle of quartz in the piece. The intrinsic value is $1,280, but the owners hold it for more because of its size and purity.

It was found by R. C. McCollum on a claim owned by McCollum and George Quille. The nugget is flat and looks like a rock from a creek bed.

The President Would Do.

While James Jeffrey Roche was having a chat with President Roosevelt in the White House a few days ago the telephone bell was ringing somewhat persistently, says the Boston Herald.

There being no attendant at hand, the president excused himself and went to answer the repeated call. This is the conversation that took place on the line, according to the testimony of the distinguished gentleman at the president's end of it:

"Well, what is it?"

"Hello, is Archie there?"

"No, he's not."

"Who's this I'm talking to?"

"The president."

"Well, you'll do. Tell Archie to come over and play ball."

And the president proceeded to execute the order as directed.

An Autumn Lyric.

All hail to thee, calm, lullabyed seasonal son
When woodlands and studies are equally brown
And for some very strong, indescribable reason
The tired summer boarders return back to town
The fat seaside bonfire gleefully flings his profits in gold as he welcomes the sun
The tired summer boarders return back to town
And the college bred waiter delightfully mingles
Once more with his get in the campus of Yale
The travel stained actor, with never a rest on Parades the Rialto once more in his prime
But his brain is perplexed by the serious question
Of how to lay out his penultimate dime
The Count de Tittano is back to the city:
His conquests were numerous by the ditty
Now he merrily trolls a gay Florentine ditty
And lathers his customers—same as before
Now Strephon and Phyllis are beautifully wreathing
The chaplets they wore in long years
And in clove scented accents the lover is breathing
His passion divine when the daylight is low
Farewell, summer season—the funny man, is sighing
Lays by the old "chestnuts" unsold till next year
The leaves with the gay season's fashion, are dying
So, boys, get your overcoats—autumn is here

ONLY AN ELEVATOR BOY

Original.

When the Spanish-American war came on Hawkins & Co. offered special inducements to the young men in their shipping to enlist. Every man of spirit so it was considered—looked advantage of the offer. The day before they marched the recruits were given a lunch at the store—a dry goods house in the lunch room on the top floor. After eating and drinking and being highly commended for their patriotism by a junior member of the firm they went down in the elevator, which was run by Tony Moxon.

"Why don't you enlist, Tony?" asked one of the recruits, Ben Cummings, jeeringly.

Crowded in the back of the elevator was Susie Toole, a pretty cash girl, on whom Cummings had cast longing eyes. He felt the effect of his new uniform, and as there was no standard present upon whom to show his pluck he must needs visit it on Tony.

"Oh, Tony's only an elevator boy," said another of the party. "He doesn't count."

"Oh, elevator boys aren't old enough to pass muster," but in another. Since Tony was twenty-two years old and a grown man, this was intended to be witty.

By this time the elevator had reached the ground floor, and the soldiers passed out. Tony, who had not uttered a word in his defense, looked around to see if all had left, when he espied Susie Toole.

"Why didn't you talk back at 'em, Tony?" she asked.

"Talk isn't knocks."

"Well, why didn't you hit at 'em?"

"Oh, I didn't want to tell 'em why I don't enlist."

"Would you like to enlist, Tony?"

"Yes, I would. Anything would be better than the drudgery of running this elevator all day. But I'd like to go anyway. I always had a fancy to be a soldier."

"Why don't you go, then?"

"What would mother do? She'd starve."

"That's right, Tony. You're a noble, good man. You stick to your elevator and your mother."

Susie passed out and was soon answering the shrill calls for "Cash!" running back and forth all day as mechanically as Tony ran his elevator.

The Spanish-American war was of short duration, and when it ended the troops came home. Those from Hawkins & Co.'s store had all been in camp in Florida and had seen no fighting at all.

These young men were in the same regiment, and one day it was announced that the command would enter the city the next afternoon. Since they would pass down the main street, on which the Hawkins store was situated, the windows of that building were full of people. Of course there was not the same enthusiasm as if the returning troops had gone to Cuba and fought at Santiago, but it was not their fault that they didn't, and they were entitled to a warm welcome.

While the people at Hawkins were waiting for the troops, suddenly smoke was seen issuing from the upper rear windows, and simultaneously there was a cry of fire. The members of the firm in the office looked at one another with blanched faces. Their building was full of people, and it was on fire. There would be a slaughter worse than that before Santiago, for the victims would be women and children. The staircases were narrow and steep. On each side of the store were two elevators, but who would run an elevator up into a burning building?

Three of the four elevator boys deserted their posts at the first alarm. The fourth boy was Tony Moxon, and he did not desert his post. The head of the firm was rushing about wildly on the ground floor when he noticed Tony's elevator come down loaded with people. As soon as it could be emptied Tony shut the door and started back. The sight of his insignificant elevator boy going up through the smoke to the region of flames quieted Mr. Hawkins.

It seemed half an hour before Tony came down again and delivered another cargo of women and children. By this time the upper floors were in a whirl of flame, and the smoke on the lower floors was stifling. Nevertheless Tony shut the gate and pulled the wire rope.

"You're not going up again?" inquired the head of the firm, agitated.

Before the words were spoken the legs of the elevator boy were just disappearing above the ceiling. Tony stopped this time at the fourth floor. The fifth was too hot for any one to live, he thought, and all must have come down. But, hearing a shriek above, he went on. At the elevator gate lay a body. There was too much smoke to see it distinctly, but Tony took it in and descended, picking up people by the way. When he reached the ground floor there was no one there but Mr. Hawkins.

"I got a corpse here, Mr. Hawkins," said Tony.

The two carried the limp figure out of the elevator, looked at the face and beheld Susie Toole.

That was Tony's last trip. He was about to get into the elevator for another when a fireman seized him.

"You little fool, get out of here."

Tony yielded to a superior authority, picked up Susie Toole and carried her out on to the sidewalk. At that moment there was a blast of trumpets, a roll of drums, and the United States volunteers made their way through an opening in the crowd effected by the police.

Tony eventually became a partner in Hawkins & Co., but long before that he married Susie Toole.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Tommy Thought He, Too, Was Entitled to a Reward.

The Browns' ash can was often the receptacle of more things than ashes. It was no uncommon thing for Nora, the maid, to find a knife or a fork or some other rather valuable article in it when she dumped the ashes in the alley. Whatever it was, she always brought it to Mrs. Brown, with the remark that here was such and such a thing that was perfectly good and that she had found in the ash barrel. Tommy, who was present on one of these occasions, saw that his mother gave Mary a pecuniary reward, so he decided to try his hand. He rummaged around in the can until he found something. He ran off to his mother, who was entertaining callers, with it.

"Oh, mamma," he cried, "look at this perfectly good cat I found in the ash can!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

What She Could Do.

"Sometimes I'm almost ready to admit I'm a failure as a cook," she said sadly.

"Oh, come now! It's not so bad as that," he said.

"Well, I'm certain I can't make things as your mother did. But," and her face brightened, "I'll tell you what I can do, and I'm going to do it. I can make a skirt like your mother used to make."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Reason For It.

"Skorcher must be getting weak-minded," said the first automobilist.

"I haven't noticed it," replied the other.

"Why, he told me he stopped his auto once yesterday because there was a pedestrian in his road."

"But I believe the pedestrian had a gun."—Baltimore News.

A Difference in Sandwiches.

"These franks are unappreciative fellows. My wife gave me a sandwich this morning, and he took a bite and then threw it away."

"Yes, he told me his wife about it while he was eating a sandwich she made for him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
